Abraham Harold Maslow (April 1, 1908 - June 8, 1970) was a psychologist who studied positive human qualities and the lives of exemplary people. In 1954, Maslow created the Hierarchy of Human Needs and expressed his theories in his book, Motivation and Personality.

Self-Actualization - A person's motivation to reach his or her full potential. As shown in Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, a person's basic needs must be met before self-actualization can be achieved.

There was a time Lisa Youngworth thought she'd never graduate from college. The Redondo Beach resident definitely never expected to be doing so at the same time as her kids.

But on Friday she did both, receiving the degree she started and stopped pursuing 20 years ago, right alongside the twin boys she raised alone in the interim.

Youngworth, 46, and sons Nicolas and Andrew Lippa, 20, were bestowed associate of arts degrees from El Camino College during afternoon graduation ceremonies at the campus near Torrance.

"It's really wild," Youngworth said of the three-way feat. "It's really exciting and I'm really proud of them. And I feel like I accomplished something, too."

Graduating from high school in 1979 in Massachusetts, Youngworth eventually ended up in Redondo Beach by way of Texas. She "took a few classes" at El Camino in the 1980s, she recalled recently, but quit after giving birth to her twins.

Soon thereafter getting divorced and finding herself a single mom, Youngworth went to work and never looked back.

"After the boys came along, for years I never thought about (school)," she said. "I had a great job, my dream job, without a degree, so I didn't necessarily need
